HAWAIIAN LEGISLATURE.

SEVENTY-FIRST DAY, July 17. The Assembly met at the usual hour, Vice President G. Rhodes in the Chair. Mr. Boyd, Chairman of the Committee to whom was referred the petition from Waimea, Kanai, reported recommending that the petition be laid ipon the table. Report accepted and petition Mr. Kalakana introduced a resolution that the Assembly tender their thanks to Mr. R. H. Stanley for the efficient manner in which he has discharged King his duty as Secretary of the Assembly. A motion was made to indefinitely postpone the order, as the Secretary had only a leave of absence, and the resolution would be in place when the business of the Assembly was closed. The resolution was then withdrawn by the intro-

Mr. Nahaku introduced a resolution that the business of the House be closed on the 21st instant.

Mr. Kalakana introduced a resolution that the bill to authorize the issue of Treasury notes be re-The Vice President ruled that the resolution could not be entertained, as it required a suspension of the rules. Mr. Abola moved that the rules be suspended for the reconsideration of the paper bill.

Mr. Bishop addressed the Assembly at some length, opposing strongly the motion, and expressing his surprise at the attempt to push the bill through after it had been so shamefully defeated and repeatedly voted down on motions to suspend the rules for its reconsideration. He stated that a certain paper published in this city, said that the Representatives were bribed, which he hoped was Mr. Kalakana said that he had always advocated the bill, and that was what induced him to introduce his resolution; that outside influence was against the bill, and when the vote on it was taken that outside influence had a great effect upon the minds of the Representatives. A further reason for introducing the resolution was to have the native portion of the Assembly give their opinions upon the bill, as at the time it was under discussion there was an ill feeling against the Minister, and that it partly controlled the votes of most of the Representatives so as to show their spite. Mr. Abolo was in favor of suspending the rules, but stated that his vote was not bribed, nor did he expect any remuneration for his influence towards the bill, as he moved to refer the bill to a Select Committee, when it was under the consideration of the House some time ago, so as to receive some information regarding it

Mr. Heuck rose to protest against proceedings of this kind, and would strongly oppose the reconsideration of the Treasury Note bill. He was surprised, to say the least not wishing to use stronger erms, at the attempt to force a measure through the House. The motion to suspend the rules for this purpose was disgraceful; instead of acting like men, it was making child's play of serious ess. The House had adopted rules for its practice; such rules should not be varied from, excepting in cases of emergency, but according to the present and former motions for a reconsideration it was just this: That we will conform to the rules only so long as it suits our convenience, and set them aside whenever it answers our purpose He had so far thought it perhaps only a bad joke played on the Ministers, who for the time were not popular, when reconsiderations were moved, and that they were innocent of such attempt calculated to place them in a wrong position before the public: but seeing the present motion coming from such a source, from a chief, he was at a loss what to think of it. Should be use stronger words to express how strong he felt on this subject? He hoped that he might not be pressed so to do! He concurred in Mr. Bishop's remarks about outside pressure. Rather would be advocate double taxaon if the revenue must be increased, and felt sure that his constituents would join him in this rather than to see the bill carried. As to the argument that native members had had no chance to speak on this subject, and that by them new light might be thrown upon a question of financiering of so important a nature-a subject that had baffled even most experienced men-be begged respectfully to express his doubts. For eight days the bill had en under consideration, and if the rative members did not choose then to take part in the discussion it was their own business. Now a reconsideration for that purpose was only wasting time. To say that this Ministerial measure was defeated by obstinacy and prejudice, and not by sound argument and thinking, did not amount to anything even if granted for the sake of argument. will sometimes form their judgment by instinctby an inner conviction of the right or wrong of a thing, without launching out into all the nice and ntricate points of the matter-and such may have been the case with some of the native members.

The result was a good one-the bill was rejectedet as now stop where we are and go no further. Mr. Kupau was strongly opposed to the resolu-tion, and also to Mr. Abolo's motion to suspend the rules, and moved the previous question. Minister Hutchison-I believe the current reert about town says I was opposed to the paper bill. I will correct it by stating that it was a Cabinet measure, and received my support. I should have been here to vote for its passage the day the question was put, had I known it. I have handed in my resignation as Minister of the Interior, and it is in the hands of the King. I will not vote on this resolution to reconsider the bill, as I am only holding my position temporarily.

Minister Harris: I sim anxious, as well as all, to understand clearly where we stand to-day. We have a full house, and I believe it to be a good and proper time to decide the matter. I centure to hope that every man will look at the 43d and 44th rules of the house, and I hope every man will be commanded to take his sect, and then we can have the matter settled defin-ncy. I speak with the hope that this will be the final settleent, and it will not be brought up again.

I now move that the Sergeant-at arms be instructed to bring I the members to their seats before the vote is taken. I agree with what has been stated by Mr. Bishop that it is a serious thing that a man should vote against his conviction, I say that it is a crime and woese, and I think it is almost as serious a hing for a man not to entertain anything, but shut their ears out. I hope the instituations that have been stated are not compled on fact; and hope the Representatives in this house will not shut their ears to sound advice. If I remember rightly, the member from Hilo said that he voted against it from preju-dice against the bill, as he did not understand it; and you have heard the remarks made by my colleague the Minister of Inte-rior. Therefore it will be observed by all fair thinking men that I am round to support all ministerial measures so long as there is breath in my bady. Therefore with the persistency for which you all give me credit I will stend by my defeated bill till it is not of the House. There is not a man in this house hat can say that I tried to carry the bill by favor, but have d it by fair argument.

Unister Harris moved that the ayes and mays be taken-

Mr. Rishon- I too shall hope that this vote will be final and the bill may not be brought up again at least this session. Everyhedy knows how long this was before the house. I care less to-day whether the bill passes or not, than I do for the manner in which it is done. Mr Rhodes—In my view the passage of the bill would be a step to change this from a monarchy to a democracy, and it is an unheard of thing that a Noble should be paid when he re-ceives his position from his birth, and he have a seat and a voice in the affairs of the nation, as well as one of the highest honors that can be conferred on them. In Republics the Senators are poid, but in France, Germany, Portugal, and many other countries in Europe, the paying of a Noble would be rchy, and the Nobles are chosen because they are among the most capable men, such as those who have done a great deal for the country and distin-guished themselves as great men, and others from their birth. When there is a necessity for a chief he is picked from the most competent of the people, and the young Nobles look forward to their position, and if they behave themselves, they receive some distinguished position such as Chamberlain or Minister. Let the members be careful of what they are doing, as they know not what will come next, if they commence to pension off the Minister Harris took exceptions from the ruling of the Vice President on the following grounds; 1st-That the rejection of the report of the Committee of the Whole placed before the House and the motion to reject having failed, it amounted to the adoption of the report by the House. 2d-That the adoption of the report having subsequently been placed by the House, and that having failed, in view of the previous vote, is equal about to a refusal of the House to entertain the bill at all, Though I submit that such a case was unheard of before, and I do not believe that it will be found in any Parliamentary pro-ceedings on record. 31—That if the bill is taken up now, it could not be taken up unless by reconsideration or by such no-tice as would bring the bill before the House as a new measure. The Vice President ruled that the first point failed, because the House would not adopt the report, and so decided. Minister Hutchison said that he was not going to ould have settled the matter themselves; but as they had not, he thought it better that some of the Ministers said a little on the subject, in order to rebut the remarks made by those in favor of the bill. He had lived on Mani for some time, and seen the ill working of the natives in the Districts on that Island from the use of intoxicating drinks; that he had heard a great many frivilous remarks made, such as the law forbade church members from taking wine at sacrament, and that the Ministers were liable to its penalties when they invited any natives to dinner, &c., which, in his opinion, was not the Mr. Kaumamano was in favor of the bill, and advocated its frue purport of the bill. He quotes postponement of the bill to amend Sect. 1, Chap. 42 of the law regarding the retailing of spirits, Ac., and furnished liquors on the sly, under some license. The law to limit the sale of liquors was made to prevent its use in an extensive manner, as too much of it was dangerous as well as too much opium. The policy of the government in issuing only one opium license is to make that article as Mr. Kalakaua moved a suspension of the rules expensive as possible, so that all cannot afford to
